NOT CONTROLLED BY THE BIG INTERESTS

GOD has made the earth productive, that every man may live directly or indirectly from the product of the soil.

Every man who is willing to work, should have the opportunity to do so, and every man who works is entitled to a place to live in and food and raiment for his family.

By a place to live in, I don't mean a little room in the back of some dirty tenement house, but a place surrounded by decent sanitary conditions; A place he can call a home.

By food I mean three meals a day of good nourishing quality, and enough so that the children don't have to go hungry to school or to bed.

When the working man or the laboring man don't get this it means that conditions are wrong, and that they should be righted.

I claim that the condition of the laboring class in Hawaii should be and can be improved.

This can be done if the friends of labor will stand together and see that wise laws are passed in their behalf through the legislature.

For that reason every working man should help send men to the Legislature who are friends of labor, or at least men who will give labor a square deal.

You hear a great deal about helping the Homesteaders, both parties advocate it and so do I. It is a good thing to make the soil produce in as great a variety as possible. In a farming country where there is plenty of farm products, such as poultry, butter, eggs, cheese and fruits and vegetables of all kinds, people live better, and for less money.

I believe in assisting homesteaders so that these same conditions may prevail here.

But if we tax to help the Planters bring in laborers, if we tax to assist Homesteaders, Let us also tax to help the working man and the laborer.

FLAG-RAISING AT LILUOKALANI
SCHOOL IS NOTABLE CEREMONYMany Distinguished Guests at Formal Dedication of the New Structure

In spite of the drizzling showers at the start, which developed into a heavy downpour just as the orator had begun speaking, the flag-raising at Liliuokalani school, Kaimuki, yesterday afternoon proved a great pleasure to all who attended the ceremony. While the heavy rain drove the assembly inside, it gave an opportunity of testing the acoustics of the assembly hall, and the result was satisfactory. Mr. C. A. Cottrill, speaking at a moderate pitch, was heard clearly both on the main floor and in the gallery. As the seats had been placed outside, the audience listened standing, and the G. A. R. veterans on the stage with heroic disdain declined the offer to have chairs brought in for them.

An amphitheatre of seats had been arranged facing the flagpole on the Koko Head avenue side of the building, consisting of the opera chairs of the assembly hall and the folding chairs of the improvement club. A circle was roped off around the pole with a semi-circle of chairs facing the auditorium for the G. A. R. veterans. Hawaiian flags were hung about the flagpole circle, while the school building was draped along the second story with the national ensign. The school children were placed in military ranked formation in the yard at the front of the building, which faces Waialae road, looking toward the flagpole at right angles to the public assembly.

A few minutes before the opening hour, 1:45 o'clock, the Hawaiian band, seated at the right of the amphitheatre, played a voluntary selection. Promptly at the set time the band played the overture starting the program. Rev. A. A. Ebersole then offered an invocation, impressive in diction and breathing a spirit of lofty patriotism.

President H. G. Davis, of Waialae, Kaimuki and Palolo Improvement Club, then delivered an introductory address, stating the purpose of the gathering and referring to the laying of the cornerstone of the beautiful schoolhouse, now presented to the sight of the audience, on April 12 last. He said it was large enough for immediate requirements and "nicely located, right in the very path of the Koko Head breeze, which alone is sufficient to stimulate the minds of our dear children and urge them on to success." The local post of the G. A. R. had kindly consented to take charge of the flag-raising, and they would be ably assisted by the children of the school. After that ceremony he would take pleasure in introducing a gentleman, who, after due and diligent persuasion, had kindly consented to speak to them, and he considered that the community was to be congratulated upon securing so able a speaker as the orator of the day, Mr. Charles A. Cottrill.

"America" is sung. "America" was then beautifully sung by the children, a few of the audience complying with the invitation to join their voices. Master Timberlake, son of Major Timberlake of Fort Ruger, now advanced from the school group with the flag in his arms, which he delivered to Post Commander F. Turfill, who in turn handed the roll of bunting to Comrade Strout, officer of the day. Undoing the string, the officer fastened the flag to the halyards. The Post stood at attention as two buglers from Fort Ruger sounded the reveille, when Comrade Strout, aided by Master Timberlake, slowly hoisted the flag to the top of the pole.

"Salute the Flag," came the order in military tone from Commander Turfill, and every veteran's hand went to his heart in response. Commander Turfill then addressed the school audience in a brief and eloquent speech. He told them of the firing upon that flag two and fifty years ago and of the response of the loyal part of the nation to the assault. Women had to bear the sacrifice of husbands, sons and brothers in the defense of the flag and of the unity of the nation. For the future defense of the flag, which was their flag, the boys he addressed must hold themselves ready. Those who fought for the flag half a century ago were fast passing into the beyond, every ten minutes a veteran of the war that saved the nation went to join commanders and comrades who had gone before. He agreed with General Sherman that war was something terrible, but, while the world was what it was, war was something that had to be prepared for. To the girls he said that their part was to maintain and build up the home. Without well-ordered homes behind it, the nation could not have a successful or prosperous future.

Singing of the "Red, White and Blue" by the children followed, after which a specially trained contingent of them beautifully performed the flag salute and drill.

Mr. Cottrill was then introduced, but he had spoken scarcely a sentence until the rain started pouring in torrents. A retreat was beaten to the inside of the building, where, after some little delay in settling down, the oration was delivered and the proceedings closed with the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band. Just before the finale, President Davis invited the people to inspect the schoolrooms. Lemonade was served at the end as a treat from the teachers.

G. A. R. Veterans in Charge. George W. De Long Post made a splendid muster on the occasion, there being few of its roster absent. The veterans taking part were as follows: Post Commander F. Turfill, Adjutant L. L. La Pierre, Junior Vice Commander P. W. Rider, Quartermaster W. L. Eaton, Officer of the Day E. A. Strout, R. D. Ellsworth, R. Jay Greene, G. Dietz, W. H. Wilkinson, J. W. Francis, W. Mackay, G. Washington Smith, W. McCandless, J. T. Copeland.

Another veteran was present among the post members in the person of Theodore Boehme, coming from the King's Daughters' Home escorted by Miss Drummond. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa, and he fought under Sherman and Grant.

Governor and Mrs. Frear, General Macomb and Lieutenant Colonel Campbell occupied seats in front at the flag-raising. Among others in attendance were Hon. W. O. Smith, Superintendent of Education, Prof. Edgar Wood, Father Valentin, Mayor Penn, Supervisors Amans, Kruger and Low, A. F. Cooke, Dr. Hutchison, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. R. King, Mr. and Mrs. Z. K. Myers, Joel C. Cohen, S. C. Hardesty, Deputy Sheriff Rose, W. L. Howard, George Osborne, Julius Asch and many others from both the neighborhood and other sections.

The Oration. Mr. Cottrill began with expressing appreciation of the honor of being asked to speak, and then congratulated the community on having such an up-to-date school building, which he later referred to as the best equipped in the territory. "I admire the splendid sentiment," he said, "which prompted the naming of this building for Her Majesty, Ex-Queen Liliuokalani, who is so generally beloved and respected by all classes."

After remarks on the flag and the American school system, he spoke of "faith in God, loyalty to country and love of humanity" as three qualities whose universality among men would mark the dawn of the perfect day when the ideal republic shall flourish. Further, Mr. Cottrill spoke in part as follows:

"The early Christian missionaries to these islands, as long ago as 1820, laid the foundations of an educational system that contemplated a training of the heart, the head and the hand. This is to my mind the ideal educational system. In the very beginning attention was given to 'vocational training'—as witness the establishment and maintenance of the Hilo Boarding School and the school at Lahaina. This splendid school system gave to the world many useful men and women prominent among whom was Samuel C. Armstrong. When Mr. Armstrong had ceased fighting the battles of the Union (he rose to the rank of General in the army) he took up the work of fighting the battles of humanity in the vocational schools of the mainland."

"The great school at Hampton, Virginia, and the greater one at Tuskegee, Alabama both owe their establishment, primarily, to General Armstrong, for he personally established Hampton and was the teacher of Dr. B. T. Washington, who founded and at present directs the policy of Tuskegee."

"It is very gratifying to note that at this very moment each of the political parties, now striving for territorial mastery, is committed to a policy of renewed vigor in the support of this now almost neglected 'vocational training.'"

"Dear Children—The world wants men and women who are straight. Straight men and women only come from straight boys and girls. The days of childhood and youth cannot be spent in doing sharp tricky things if we hope to grow into straight men and women. If we ever expect to be straight, the time to begin is here and now. The truly straight boy and girl may be described as follows:

"They are not afraid to look any one in the eye. They have a frank manly and womanly bearing. If they say they are not, only truth passes their lips. They honor their father and mother. They are respectful to every one. They love God and good things. These are some of the essentials of true manhood and womanhood. May God help you to measure up to them in the coming years."

Liliuokalani School Staff. Liliuokalani School staff is composed as follows: Miss Needham, principal, 6th grade; Miss Brooker, 7th and 8th grade; Miss Winer, 5th grade; Mrs. King, 4th grade; Miss Gurney, 3rd grade; Mrs. Horgaard, 2nd grade; Mrs. Minton, 1st grade; A. Miss Edith Lightfoot, 1st grade; Miss Zoe Watkins, 1st grade; C. Miss Winne is the director of singing, who, assisted by Mrs. King, trained the pupils for the fine performance at flag-raising.

You are making preparations for your Holiday trade. You want to reach the people in their homes.

You can find no better medium for placing your goods before the buying public than the HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN. This paper goes into more homes and is read by more people in the city of Honolulu and the Territory of Hawaii than any other newspaper published.

If you doubt this, our subscription books are open to your inspection.

Bear in mind that the HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN in addition to being the home paper of Honolulu, goes to all the plantation centers of the outside islands, and is the Sunday morning newspaper of Hilo and its adjacent territory. The new schedule of the Mauna Kea enables us to place the Saturday afternoon paper on sale on the streets and at the news stands of Hilo early Sunday morning.

The SEMI-WEEKLY STAR-BULLETIN also deserves the special attention of the live Honolulu business man who aims to secure his fair share of the Island trade, which, if neglected, will probably go to the mainland mail order stores.

The SEMI-WEEKLY STAR-BULLETIN goes into more country homes than any other newspaper published in the Islands. You can spend your money to the best advantage by patronizing a newspaper that covers all the Islands. It is a business proposition.

The 1912 Holiday season should be a prosperous one with you. You can make it more prosperous by using the HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN and the SEMI-WEEKLY STAR-BULLETIN.
